

7th Floor Rocks Homeless Shelter

The Center for the Homeless on South Michigan Street was treated to an inspired performance on Monday by the group 7th Floor. Director of the CFH, Lou Nanni, scheduled the performance of the Rock Opera Soundtrack to Life by 7th Floor on a Monday night in place of the usual community meeting to maximize the turnout of guests at the Center.

The crowd was visibly moved during several portions of the show, which is about the personal experiences with depression and recovery of the band members.

“Inspiring, uplifting, and heartwarming” were just some of the superlatives used to describe the show. “There is a healing quality to the songs” one member of the audience was quoted as saying. The connection between the performers and the audience was magical.

Rarely does a performance engulf an audience the way Soundtrack to Life mesmerized the one hundred and twenty-five people Monday night at the CFH. If this show is any indication of how the Rock Opera Soundtrack to Life will be received, look for big things from 7th Floor!
